"DOWN EAST" SILVER MINING

[San Francisco Stock Exchange.] When, three years ago, reports first came of the discovery of a true fishure silver vein near Newburyport, Massa-chusetts, a very general smile of derision spread itself over the face of "ye honest miner," of the Pacific Coast. Rumors came from time to time of its developments, but of late the public has heard but little of the mine and doubtless every body thought—if they gave it any thought at all—that the Massachusetts silver lode had long ago been gathered in the wild-cat's lair. But its fate seems to have been something different. The first discovery of the vein was made by one Adams, a Yankee of some native shrewdness, but whose metallurgical knowledge was limited. In fact he did not know a siece of silver quartz from a brick. But he "stuff" had a curious black "metallike" look, and Mr. Adams resolved to prospect further. He didn't dare tell snybody, so be bought a couple of text-books on mineralogy and spent two years in studying out the value of his discovery. Then he went and bought twelve acres of the ground and began to dig. He was early joined by one W. W. Chipman, an old mining man, who recognizing the probability of success from the surface indications, laid the matter before some of his friends, and Dr. K-lley, E. P. Staw and E. M. Boynton scon became the owners with him-self of the Adams purchase and the ad-joining property lying on the same vein. The Chipman Mining Company was formed, and work was regularly begun with proper machinery and appliances and a shaft sunk to a depth of about 100 feet, with three levels running on the vein. A large quantity of fine ore was taken out, and the Chipman Company was on the high road to success; about a year ago a large cash sum was offered for the property, was accepted, and the mine, togother with about 2,000 teet on the lode, passed into the hands of the Merrimac Silver Mining Company.

The Boston Globe now gives this interesting history of the Merrimac's oper-

No assessment has ever been laid by any organization owning it; every person owning the property has sold to advantage, and the mineral taken from the mine has paid the cost of both exploration and "plant." The works now erected have cost fully $60,000, and the opening of the mine has cost at least opening of the mine has cost at least $50,000 more; yet there has been enough taken from the mine in sinking the shaft to a depth of 250 feet and mining some 1500 feet of drifts and crosscuts to pay the cost of so doing, without having stoped (excavated) on the vein to any extent below the thirty-six foot level. The mine is now opened for a working production of at least two years, there being, according to Professor Vinton, of Columbia College, some 40,000 tons of ore now in sight. And it is his opinion, and that of all experts and scientists who have ever examined the property, that greater values exist below, and that the staying one. The product of the mine has up to a few weeks since been con-centrated on the premises and shipped in various directions to be smelted. of freights and the profits neces sarily paid others for amelting have so materially reduced the net yield, from what it should be that the company has lately determined to do its own work, and a furnace has just been erected for reducing the ore to low-grade bullion, this being after assay at the Government mints, a regular article of commerce, subject to none of the contingencies of guesswork of unamelted ores. It is esti-mated that this will yield fully 25 per cent. larger net results. The company has been paying monthly dividends for some time past, and we are assured on competent authority that dividends for the coming six months are already in the crib, or on the surface with plenty more The President of the company is Mr. William Wooley, an old and well-known successful Bostonian. The Superintendent, Mr. Edward Shaw, is recognized as an expert by all who have ever visited the great mines of Eureka, Nevada, which he superintended for three years. The Directors are wellknown, conservative men, who own their own interests as an investment, baving paid liberally for what they own, and being satisfied with the good interest they are receiving and feel confident of continuing to receive. The mine is conducted on sconomical principles, purchases are made at the lowest rates, labor is chang, minera receiving at the orestest is chang. is cheap, miners receiving at the greatest $1.75 a day, fuel ready at hand, and though the Merrimac ore is of the above average value, a much lower grade would pay handsomely.

A Milwaukee lady, in taking her morning gape, lately put her jaw out of joint and it was two days before the doctor could get it in place again. Her husband says he hasn't bad such a vacation since his married life began.

A PRACTICAL JOKER.

Several American and Parisian papers give accounts of the extraordinary propendent means, whose one object in life appears to be to worry Custom House officers. He has returned to his native Paris, and everywhere railway officials have been warned about his pranks.
"It is his wont," says the American Register, "to pack a huge trunk full of trowser-straps, such as are worn with gaiters, using hydraulic pressure, as if it were necessary to cram five bushels into a three-bushel space, then to allure the inspector to open it as a suspicious package, when naturally the contents are overset, and the whole force of the Cushelland and the ways was secured for hours in overset, and the whole force of the Cus-tom House was occupied for hours in putting them back. A powerful Jack-in-the-box was another device of his that was very successful." But more than this is currently reported of the gentleman. It is his practice some time to leave a hamper of very high game at a parcel office, and not take it out, simply sending messengers to inquire how the strength of the odor was progressing. When the officers at the parcel office could not endure the affliction any longer, and threw the hamper away. M. longer, and threw the hamper away, M. Vivier would appear and politely request the return of his goods. Of course a great commotion would follow, which in every way, often by the aid of lawyers, would be prolonged by M. Vivier to his intense secret delight. Appeals to Parisian courts would be threatened to humble village officials, who were warned of the nature of court costs. On one ocof the nature of court costs. On one occasion it is said that M. Vivier blandly asked an old gentleman bathing at Bou-logne if he had seen the shark. The awful hint spread as a fact far and wide. Next day it appeared that every one had seen the monster. No one bathed. M. Vivier smiled, spped his Bordesux, and took his departure, thoroughly gratified. He had his powerful Jack-in-the-box with him to meet all emergencies at the railway stations on the way. Another story is told of his appearing at a rall-way station with two values. The offiway station with two valises. The offi-cer curtly inquired if they contained any-thing contraband. "You can see for yourself," said Vivier, blandly offering the key. "What does this one con-tain?" demanded the officer. "One rat-tlesnake," replied Vivier, mildly. "And this?" "Two rattlesnakes," answered this?" "I'wo rattlesnakes," answered the humorist, in a pathetic voice. The official started back, muttering. A conference was held. The table of permitted articles was anxiously consulted, "No duty on rattlesnakes for any number less than four," grumbled the officer, exter recorders by remarks. "You may after considerable research. "You may ADAM'S FIRST WIFE'S REVENCE .- This is the old Hebrew cabilistic legend of Lilith, the first wife of Adam, as told by M. D. Conway, in his lecture on devil: "She was a cold, passionless, splendid beauty, with wondrous golden hair. She was created Adam's equal in every respect; and, therefore, properly enough, refused to obey him. For this she was driven from the garden of Eden, and Eve was created—made to order, so to speak—of one of Adam's ribs. Then the golden haired Lilith—jealous, enthe golden haired Little—jeacous, en-raged, pining for her first home in Para-dise—entered in the form of a serpent, crept into the garden of Eden, and tempted Adam and Eve to their destruc-And, from that day to this, Lilith tion. a cold, passionless beauty, with golden heir, has roamed up and down the earth, snaring the sons of Adam, and destroying them. You may always know her dead victims, for, whenever a man has been destroyed by the hands of Lilith you will always find a single golden hair wrapped tight around his lifeless hear To this day many and many a son of Adam is lured to death and ruin from having the golden bair of a woman wrapped too tight around his heart.

A large black eagle, weighing forty-four pounds, was recently killed by a party of hunters near Monticello, only surrendered after both its wings only surrondered after both the whole had been broken and it had been pursued several miles by hounds and horsemen.
